

Lab 1 State Diagram for the machine

This machine simulates an elevator. The delay between a motor turning on and the elevator “car” reaching the destination floor is approximately 2 seconds in this simulation. A real elevator would clearly take longer to travel between floors, but to avoid waiting a long time while debugging the controller a short travel time was chosen.

